

Working in C-ODE

Community - Organisations, Development and Engagement

A course for anyone working in communities

Qualification in Community Development Level 2&3

'a life-changing factor'

'without doubt a stepping stone into employment for me'

University of Brighton

Community
University
Partnership
Programme

This course will support you to develop practical and analytical skills to work with a range of communities. Through the course you will gain

- an understanding of community development values and purpose, work with community groups and the diversity of communities
- skills in community development practice – inclusive group work, assessing community needs and reflective practice

Register your interest by emailing info@trustdevcom.org.uk or call 01273 262220

There will be an information workshop on Wednesday 27th April where you can find out more about the course and help to co-design the course materials.

The course will be delivered and sponsored by tdc with support from the University of Brighton. Bursaries will be available. Contact us for more information about fees.

The course is for anyone

- in paid work or volunteering
- who is actively involved in community development,
- in voluntary and community organisations, statutory bodies or businesses.

The Trust for Developing Communities (TDC)

We work in neighbourhoods, across the city and beyond, with adults, young people and older people. Our trained and experienced workers work with local forums, groups and individuals - supporting partnerships and networks with other organisations to create and facilitate community-led changes.

As well as community engagement courses for the community and statutory sector, we deliver one-off consultancy and research projects such as surveys and needs assessments and develop training tailored for community settings.

The Trust for Developing Communities, Wavertree House,
Somershill Road, Hove BN3 1RN 01273 262220

A Company Limited by Guarantee registration number
3939332 and Registered Charity number 1106623